This year's Bike Around the Borough saw nearly 300 students from 20 Hackney schools cycling the nine mile route

ONE of London's largest-ever bike rides for young people took place on 27 June, with almost 300 students participating from 20 Hackney schools. Starting at Well Street Common, the riders journeyed through Hackney Downs, Clissold Park and Hackney Road, finishing at London Fields. Bike Around the Borough provides a chance for students to practise skills learnt through cycle training and to help them realise how easy it is to travel in Hackney by bicycle. After the nine mile bike ride, students were entertained in London Fields with live music, BMX displays and mountain bike stunt shows. For more info and pics, see pages 8-9.

Grant funding opens

THE Council is set to launch its 2014/15 voluntary and community sector (VCS) grants programme, which will see local voluntary and community organisations benefit from grant funding to support projects for residents.

Eligible organisations are able to apply for the grants, from £1,000 to £40,000, which will be offered across the six objectives contained within the Sustainable Community Strategy: promoting work opportunities; raising educational achievement and aspirations; promoting health, well-being and independent living; helping to make Hackney safer; developing good neighbourhoods; and supporting environmental sustainability. Grants will also be available for holiday playschemes.

“The Council is fully supportive of the excellent work delivered by its voluntary and community sector”

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: “The Council is fully supportive of the excellent work delivered by its voluntary and community sector, who provide support for so many of our residents. I’m delighted that despite economic difficulties we have been able to continue to offer grants to support this vital work.”

The programme supports a range of projects such as youth activity schemes for children and young people, health advice, employment support advice and improved safety in the borough. Some 136 grants have been awarded from this year’s (2013/14) £2.5million programme with another round of Community Chest grants of up to £1,000 opening for applications in September.

Details about initiatives the Council has supported through its VCS grants programme and for the evaluation of its 2012/13 programme can also be found on the website below.

Case study: The Anna Fiorentini Film & Theatre School

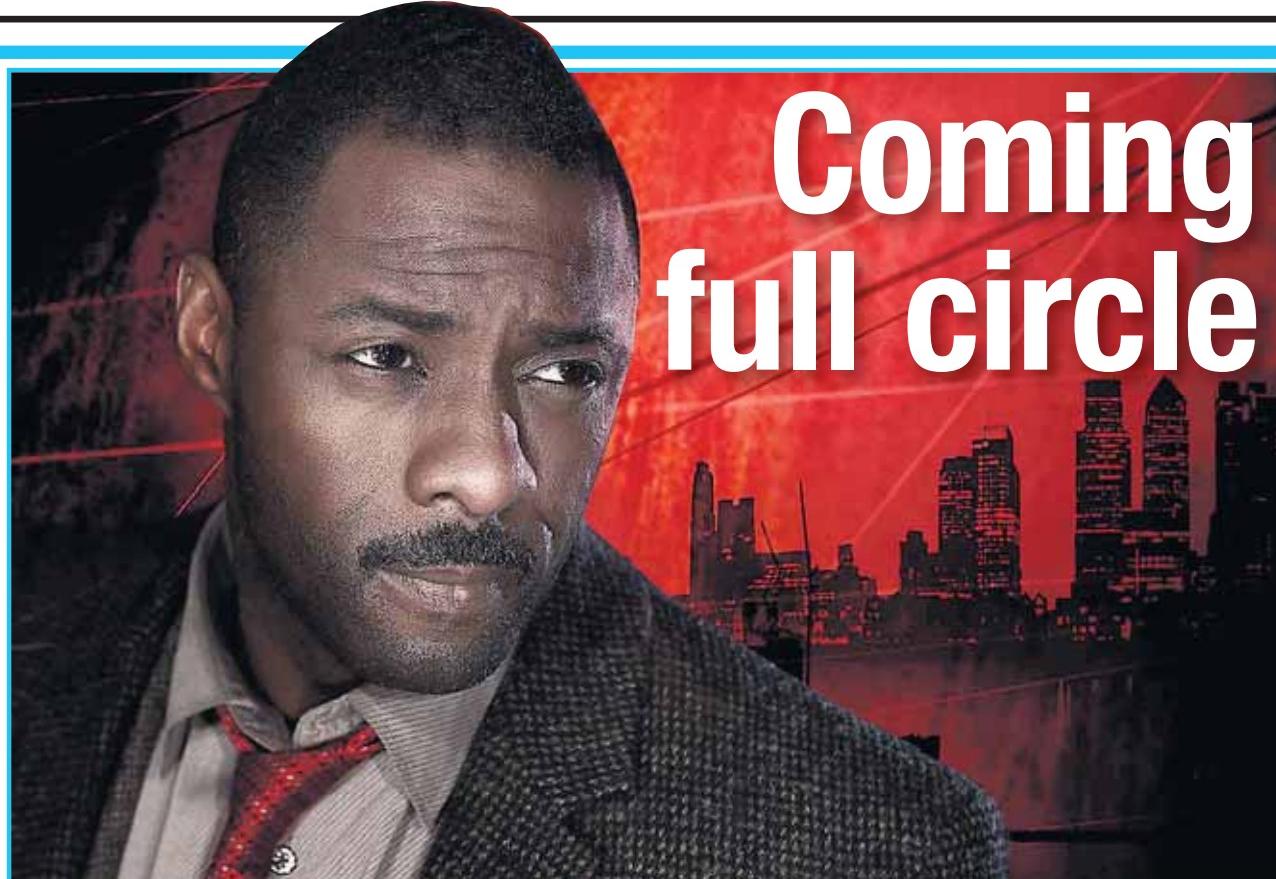

THIS not for profit, award-winning film and theatre school provides a safe and supportive environment for young people to explore the performing arts. Drama, film, dance and singing classes are provided – as well as set and costume design. The Council’s VCS grants programme gave £4,200 to subsidise or provide free part-time placements at the school for 15 Hackney young people, aged between seven to 18, from low income backgrounds. This enabled them to participate in a professional environment for both personal and career development, and learn valuable life skills.

Coming full circle

Former resident Idris Elba returns to Hackney for the hit BBC1 psychological crime drama 'Luther'

HIT BBC1 psychological crime drama 'Luther' has returned for its third outing on television screens.

The show was filmed almost exclusively in the borough, taking in Gainsborough Studios, N1; Poole Street, N1; Kingsland Road, E8; Haberdasher Street, N1; Clifton Street, EC2A; Wilton Way, E8; and Eleanor Road, E8. The Hackney link comes full circle with former local boy Idris Elba again taking on the role of the troubled detective. Idris said: "Lots happens in this season, lots of bad stuff. I don't know where it's going to leave Luther, he's not a fragile man, but he might end up becoming fragile after what he goes through. But at his core is the same sort of policeman, the same sort of man with a good heart who goes for it." The next episodes of 'Luther' show on 9 July and 16 July, 9pm on BBC1.

Down memory lane

A FORMER resident of one of Hackney's biggest housing estates returned to the flat he was born in, to see it one last time before the bulldozers move in.

Douglas Sey was born in his family's fourth floor flat in Nicholl House, Woodberry Down, in 1951. He lived there for nearly 30 years before moving to Enfield, and on 23 May he came back to look around his childhood home before its demolition as part of the estate's 20-year regeneration.

I lived here [for nearly 30 years]... I remember my roots and will never forget

The flat brought back all sorts of memories for Douglas, including scorch marks from a chip pan fire in the kitchen that he and his sister had desperately tried to clean up before their mother got home. The windows and cupboards hadn't changed, he noted.

Douglas now lives in Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, but growing up at Woodberry Down he went to the John Scott Nursery and Junior School as a child, then the comprehensive school that has since been redeveloped with new homes, known as the Old School Site.

He said: "Every couple of years I come down to London, the draw is very strong, although I no longer know anyone who lives here. I think it needs to be regenerated, I'm not sentimental that it should be preserved but more that I've lived here, and the memories it brings back. I remember my roots and will never forget them."

The Council is leading the regeneration of Woodberry Down, which involves the delivery of more than 4,600 homes for social renting, shared ownership and private sale, and a range of new facilities including a community centre, new Academy, and extended primary school, as well as retail and commercial opportunities.

New tool to tackle burglary

THE Council and Police have a new high tech tool to help them crack down on burglary. Although crime in Hackney is down, burglary remains a priority for the Council, which has bought hundreds of property marking kits to give away to residents. Smartwater – a forensically traceable liquid – is being trialled in the King's Park ward. Residents can sign up for a free pack of the liquid, which cannot be seen by the naked eye, but becomes visible when placed under UV light. By sending it to a lab for analysis, stolen property can easily be reunited with its rightful owners. Signs will be put up to let potential thieves know that the area is marked with Smartwater.

Residents in the King's Park ward can sign up for free Smartwater during an Action Day, from 2-5pm on 10 July, outside the Kabin in Kingsmead Way; or book an appointment by ringing their local police team on: 020 8721 2939; or: 07879 486460.

Want to adopt or foster a child?

ARE you interested in fostering or adoption? If you can provide a safe, secure and nurturing environment, you may have the potential to become an adopter or foster carer. ## Fun fitness day

A HEALTH and fitness craze hit residents as the Barry McGuigan Boxing Academy's (BMBA) Boxing for Health Initiative came back to Hackney.

Free sessions at the Hackney Marshes Centre on 26 June aimed to get people thinking about health and fitness by giving practical advice and exercise tips.

Activities on offer included non-contact boxing, walking football, and tape ball cricket with sessions for adults, over 55s and people of all ages.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Taster sessions like these are a great way to get tips and pointers from professional coaches while giving new activities a try. More will be held in Hackney, which is great news, as most of us could make changes, big or small that can help us lead healthier lives."

Walking football – which is good for those with health problems but who are still enthusiastic about football – was held outside on the Marshes football pitches.

London Football Association officer Byron Casimir said: "We played some small skill-based games in which everyone handled themselves very well. Participants enjoyed the experience and they said they would happily take part again."

At the over 55s boxing session, sprightly Winifred Roach, 78, was put through her paces by the BMBA coaching staff.

Mark Molynaux, from Homerton, also tried out boxing for the first time. He said: "I enjoyed all of the sports today and would like to take part in more – especially football. It's a bit difficult and frightening when you're my age to get back into things you used to do."

People were also able to get health checks, and sexual health charity Brook gave information to young people. City and Hackney NHS, Take12, and Three Sisters Care were there to talk to residents. Free 15-minute relaxation and de-stressing back and neck massages proved very popular, especially after a boxing workout.

Brian Walpole, BMBA event co-ordinator, said: "It was great to see such a diverse range of participants turn out to try a new activity and learn something new about nutrition and positive lifestyle habits. Young and old got involved and utilised the day held at Hackney

'Best small museum'

A NEW exhibition at Hackney Museum has opened to rave reviews from both visitors and press.

'100 Images of Migration' has been developed in partnership with the Migration Museum Project and gives a glimpse of migration in and out of Britain over the century.

Speaking at the launch, Barbara Roche, chair of the Migration Museum Project, described Hackney Museum as 'the best small museum in the world.'

Pictures from people across the country, including

Hackney Museum's educational programme is created to both challenge and inspire schoolchildren some from well-known photographers, feature in the exhibition and show the many backgrounds of people who have come here over the last hundred years.

Through Hackney Museum's educational programme, primary schoolchildren visited the exhibition as part of the nationwide celebration of last month's Refugee Week. Pupils discovered the reasons why people settle in the UK, exploring the experiences of refugee communities and forced migration.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "Hackney Museum's educational programme is created to both challenge and inspire schoolchildren in Hackney. These particular sessions around migration, and indeed the exhibition itself, seek to develop an understanding of how migration has brought new cultures and communities that have helped to shape the country we live in today. This is particularly pertinent in Hackney, where we have a proud history of celebrating diversity."

New design review panel to shape Hackney's built environment

A TEAM of 56 professionals who specialise in architecture, urban design, sustainability and conservation have been selected as Hackney's new Design Review Panel (DRP) to help shape Hackney's built environment.

The Hackney DRP was first established in 2006 to assist in improving the design quality across all types of development. Since then the panel has reviewed over 150 schemes, many of which are now built and have become nominated and award winning projects.

A successful drive to refresh the panel began in March, which received more than 140 applications. The new team's first design review session is scheduled for this month and will provide independent advice on development proposals that may significantly affect the urban design of Hackney; major planning applications; and Council initiatives with urban design implications.

Russell Brown, DRP chair and founding partner of Hawkins\Brown, said: "The DRP has achieved a great deal since it started. It has evolved a distinct style of honest, pro-active and passionate operation that reflects the unique character of Hackney, and the planning authority's determination to attract the best designers to the area."

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration, added: "I'd like to welcome all of our new DRP members, and thank them for volunteering their time to help shape the future built environment of Hackney.

"The intention is to encourage high quality development in our borough, development that contributes to improving the quality of our lives."

Have your say on Crossrail2

THE Council is backing plans to bring new underground rail lines to Hackney, voicing their support for a 'Regional' Crossrail 2 initiative, which could greatly increase public transport links for the borough.

Crossrail 2 would provide an underground service from Hackney to central London stations, including Victoria and Euston, and could open by 2033.

The number of stations and potential routes are currently open for public discussion, with residents invited to share their views on which scheme they would prefer.

Transport for London have proposed two options for Hackney: a 'Metro' route which would serve one station at Dalston Junction; and an expanded, larger capacity 'Regional' scheme which offers additional station links at Hackney Central along with a line through Tottenham Hale to the North East.

Interchanges at Dalston Junction and Hackney Central stations could also be improved as part of the plans, which could cost around £12 billion for the entire scheme.

Consultation is open until 2 August. Have your say at: www.tfl.gov.uk/crossrail2

Calling all campus

HACKNEY Community College (HCC) rang in the sunny season last week with its annual Summerfest.

The event, on 3 July, encompassed end-of-year shows in fashion, arts, media and basketball, alongside community projects and acts by local performers.

Around 1,000 people came through the HCC gates in Falkirk Street to enjoy the free festival. Exhibitions of art, design and interactive media were dotted around the campus and two professional standard fashion shows were staged to show off the students' work from the year.

Exhibition basketball matches were arranged

We've been doing [the HCC Summerfest] for about 10 years so students can show off the work they've done in the college's sports centre, SPACe, for HCC's current Basketball Academy students to pit their on-court skills against HCC's Old Boys, Greig City Academy and Ealing, Hammersmith & West London College.

Flow Motion, a dance group made up of students from performing arts and other HCC courses, also entertained the crowds with their innovative street dance display.

The day kicked off with local singer/songwriter Ben River taking the centre spot in the college's outdoor amphitheatre, which later featured a spoken word and rap showcase, hosted by DJ Lu'e-B and organised by Art Against Knives – an organisation that tries to provide young people with a voice and a positive way to express social issues.

Ian Ashman, principal at HCC, said: "We've been doing this for about 10 years so students can show off the work they've done, but also because it has to get examined and marked. And we thought: if we're going to do these shows, why not open it up to the public?"

Exhibitors and stalls, including Young Hackney, the Hair Project and the Robert Levy Foundation, added to the community feel of the day. The Bike Project gave free bike check-ups and carried out repairs.

College staff and students were on hand to give information to visitors through the day about courses and other aspects of college life.

FOR the third consecutive year, a huge contingent of Hackney pupils took to the roads in a nine mile ride.

Starting at Well Street Common, riders passed through Hackney Downs, Clissold Park and Hackney Road, finishing at London Fields. With a total of 401 adults and pupils, the event is almost certainly the largest ever bike ride for schools in London and the UK.

Bike Around the Borough – which was awarded best school project earlier in the year – took place on 27 June and was organised by the Council and the Hackney Police Safer Transport Team.

The ride provides a chance for students to practise skills learnt through cycle training and to help them realise how easy it is to travel around the borough by bike. The Council offers free cycle training courses to all schools for year six students, and last year 887 Hackney pupils received on-road bike training through the borough's cycle training programme.

After the ride, a celebration in London Fields included live music from Five-O, a mountain bike stunt show from MAD, and a chance for participants to test their BMX skills with Cllr Feyral Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Bike Around the Borough is one of my favourite events of the year and has established itself as one of the highlights of the cycling calendar in Hackney.

"To get 300 schoolchildren learning to cycle safely on our roads and to show them how fun, healthy exercise and sustainable travel can be is a fantastic achievement."

Hackney has been recognised nationally for its innovative approaches to encouraging cycling. Initiatives such as free training for children and adults, 20-mile-per-hour limits on all Council-controlled residential roads and awareness training for HGV drivers mean that the borough now has the highest rates of cycling amongst London residents.

Bike Around the Borough is part of the Council's efforts to increase cycling and make Hackney the most cycle-friendly borough in London.

Mastering the cheffing scene

BY day a credit controller, at night a house DJ – and somewhere between the invoices, payment chasing and slipmats Natalie Coleman found the hours to become a top cook and MasterChef champion.

The proud eastender scooped the amateur cooks' TV competition crown, serving the judges lobster tails and roast pork belly in the final round, a worthy platter for any fine dining restaurant. But Natalie, 29, describes it a little differently. She says: "It didn't really go the way I was planning it and looking back it was a bit cheeky; basically I served John [Torode] and Gregg [Wallace] a scotch egg and roast dinner."

Schooled in Hackney, she moved to Chingford, Essex, in the late 1980s, returning to the borough at age 18. She says: "There's so much going on in the area, you can't beat it really."

"And it has massively changed since I was a kid. My granddad says 'oh those trendies walking around, they need to pull their jeans up', but it's brilliant around here. You've got Dominic [Cools-Lartigue] embracing the street food culture doing Street Feast just off Kingsland Road. Broadway Market, with places like Yum Bun, a successful market stall that now has its own shop. There is loads of music, nightlife and arts; everywhere you look there's something inspiring."

But her inspiration, at least at first, didn't come from East London's precocious artists, musicians or boutique galleries.

She says: "I used to spend a lot of time with my grandparents, my nan used to cook for me and I learnt a lot from her. When you leave home, you need to survive – you can't just live on Pot Noodles!"

"So I watched a lot of cookery programmes. Sitting there, watching all day, I think you just absorb some of it."

Adding: "It was my aunt who got me to apply for MasterChef – she's a choreographer and danced for years. She said 'you hate your job – you need to wake up and find something you like doing'."

Natalie became known on the show for her down-to-earth personality and cockney charm, which won over TV audiences almost as much as her dishes bowled over the judges.

"I just like eating!" she says. "It's just cooking what you'd want and hoping someone else wants to eat it. When I go out, I take pictures of what I eat and put it together with my own ideas to make a dish."

The win so far has seen her shadow superstar chefs like Marcus Wareing and Simon Rogan and now TV cook Brian Turner is helping her go to cooking college.

She's spending the remainder of the year doing food shows, promoting the MasterChef cookbook and cooking at events like the launch of E3 Essence homes on Roman Road.

But what of one of her first love: house music? She says: "I haven't been doing that much DJing recently, for now I'm just concentrating on the food."

"But," she adds, "me and my best mate have been talking about combining DJing and cooking. You know, do a pop-up thing for a night, have some deep house and disco while you eat and turn it into a bit of a techno rave after."

THE GREEN GENIE

All your green questions answered

Q: I heard on the news that I can save money by saving water. How can this help cut my bills?

A: A report from the Energy Saving Trust into how people use water showed that the average UK household could save money by following three simple steps.

1. Smarter showering – using an eco-shower head cuts water use. With the average UK shower time of seven and a half minutes, cutting the amount of time you spend in the shower could also help to reduce hot water costs.
2. Washing cooler – setting your washing machine to 30C could save 40 per cent of the energy used on a 50C or 60C wash.
3. Budgeting your brews – more than 75 per cent of people boil more water than they need when making hot drinks, which costs British people £68million a year.

West Hackney Recreation Ground has been awarded almost £700,000 by the Heritage Lottery Fund

Big win for park

ALMOST £700,000 has been awarded to renovate a hidden gem of green space in Stoke Newington.

West Hackney Recreation Ground began as a burial ground attached to St Paul's Church West Hackney, before being handed to the Council.

The church itself opened in 1823, but was rebuilt in 1960 following bombing in the Second World War. Now a generous grant has been secured from the Heritage Lottery Fund (HLF) that will secure the next phase in the development of the recreation ground.

“I’m looking forward to seeing the transformation, which will see new woodland planted and original pathways restored”

Funding will help to renovate the burial ground, recreation ground and the forecourt at the front of the modernist church – increasing planting, adding seating and restoring gravestones, some of which date back to the 1800s.

Rev Niall Weir, Rector of St Paul's West Hackney, said: “We are absolutely delighted to have won this grant and have no doubt that this will not only transform the physical appearance of the recreation ground and St Paul’s Churchyard, but that it will create a wonderful focus and facility for the people of Hackney.”

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for

Health, Social Care and Culture, added: “I’m looking forward to seeing the transformation, which will see new woodland planted and original pathways restored, and I hope others too will discover anew this welcoming green space.”

The investment is supported by a maintenance plan, which will be jointly managed by the church and the Council’s parks department. Works are expected to be completed next year.

Leandro Erlich: Dalston House

Until 4 August, 1-7 Ashwin Street, Dalston, E8 3DL

HAVE you ever wanted to burgle a house, scale a wall like Spider-Man or get yourself on to the property ladder? Leandro Erlich's unusual art installation, Dalston House, fulfils all of these desires without the prospect of arrest, injury or bankruptcy. On a disused lot that has largely remained vacant since it was bombed in the Second World War, the life-size facade of a late 19th century Victorian house lies on the ground with a mirrored surface positioned overhead at a 45-degree angle. It's refreshingly low-tech. Enchanted visitors strike playful poses, draping themselves over window ledges and cornices, to evoke the impression, reflected in the vast mirror, they are perching nonchalantly on, hanging precariously off or recklessly scaling the building. Children will love it and even the most sceptical of adults can't fail to be entertained.

When I clamber with childish excitement on to the facade of the house, I am struck all of the sudden by stage fright: I feel obliged to do something 'creative'. For Leandro, the audience breathes life into the artwork – without them it's a cardboard cut-out, an abandoned house of mirrors, a desolate film set.

Dalston House is part of the Beyond Barbican summer programme, a series of arts events outside the walls of the Barbican Centre featuring pop-up performance commissions and collaborations across East London. For more info, visit: www.barbican.org.uk

Duncan Goodhew with Holmleigh pupils in front of his Javelin train for children's charity Variety

Fast as a Javelin

PUPILS from Holmleigh Primary School took a whirlwind day out across the South East when they met with former Olympic swimmer Duncan Goodhew.

Three hundred youngsters

I never in my wildest dreams expected to have my name emblazoned on a train from the school on Dunsmure Road travelled to St Pancras Station to 'rail test' the Javelin; a high-speed train that covers Kent and Surrey.

Each of the trains are being named after Britain's fastest athletes, former and current, to commemorate the Olympics, with Duncan being the latest. The swimmer attended the event on 10 June in his role as ambassador for children's charity Variety.

He said: "This is a tremendous honour. I never in my wildest dreams expected to have my name emblazoned on the side of a train, so this is an absolute thrill."

"Variety creates positive experiences for young disabled and disadvantaged children so this was a great event to which we could invite the pupils from Holmleigh School."

Other names featured on Javelin trains include Dame Kelly Holmes, Lord Sebastian Coe, Sir Steve Redgrave, Daley Thompson, Jessica Ennis and resident Baroness Tanni Grey Thompson.

Sally Gardner wins Carnegie Medal after judging schools' literary competition

AWARD-WINNING children's author Sally Gardner led a panel of judges at a Hackney schools' literary competition – just hours before being announced as the winner of the prestigious Carnegie Medal for children's literary fiction.

Eight local schools took part, which involved each of them presenting one of the eight books that were shortlisted for the prize.

One of them was Sally's book, 'Maggot Moon' (pictured inset).

Pupils used visual art, drama, dance, music and moving images to express their thoughts and feelings about the books. The winning school was Bridge Academy, whose students gave a lively presentation of Dave Shelton's 'A Boy and a Bear in a Boat'.

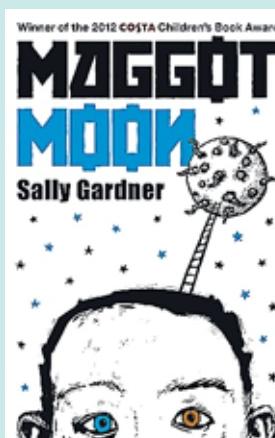

The panel of judges also included staff from Hackney Learning Trust and Jo De Guia, owner of Victoria Park Books.

The next day, Sally, who has dyslexia, was announced as the winner of the Carnegie Medal, the most prestigious prize in children's literature. 'Maggot

Moon', which also scooped the 2012 Costa Children's Book Award, is set in a neo-Nazi state in an alternate 1950s.

Previous winners of the Carnegie Medal include CS

Lewis and Terry Pratchett. As part of her prize, Sally will receive £500 of books to donate to her local library, in Stoke Newington.

Sally said: "I had a phenomenally lovely day visiting an amazing group of youngsters. I didn't succeed at school – didn't do well or get the exams – so it's important for me to inspire people to make the best use of their gift."

Cllr Rita Krishna,

Cabinet Member for Children's Services and Education, added: "Our Carnegie competition is always a much anticipated event, which our schools really look forward to. It's a great way to bring these stories to life and get children talking about books – and, of course, meeting Sally Gardner was very exciting for them, especially as her photograph was all over the press the next day!"

News in brief

Local young artists showcase talent in Hackney Art Show

BUDGING artists of the future from schools in Hackney will be showcasing their work at a new exhibition at Hackney Town Hall's Assembly Hall on 10 and 11 July. The Hackney Art Show will include painting, drawing, textiles and a selection of film work. Visitors will also have the chance to create their own Manga-style drawing, with help from local artist Rory Doona.

The exhibition will feature some of the best work from 11 secondary schools and academies, as well as work by BTEC Art and Design students from Hackney Community College. A poster for the exhibition (pictured) was designed by Shorifa Begum, an art student at Haggerston School. Cllr Rita Krishna, Cabinet Member for Children's Services and Education, said: "We've got some incredibly talented young people in Hackney, so it's great to open up our beautiful Assembly Hall as an exhibition space for them. "This is a chance to share that creative spirit and allow their ideas to be seen by people who wouldn't usually get the opportunity, so I'd encourage everyone to go along and see this exciting exhibition."

Hackney's school art departments have a strong reputation, with around a third of GCSE art and design students achieving A* or A, compared to 21 per cent nationally.

Hackney Art Show will be open from 9am-4pm, at Hackney Assembly Hall, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street, E8. Entrance is free and open to the public.

young people aged 16 to 25 from Hackney and other boroughs surrounding Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park to develop skills and gain a qualification in radio production.

On 13 June, the work of the project participants was showcased at the newly refurbished studio in Bow.

Tevin, 20, from Hackney, said: “The project has given me a window of opportunity and has made me more confident in speaking and interviewing. I love the new studio space and it allows me to continue my learning in a really cool location.”

The training is funded by the London Legacy Development Corporation, and is provided by Reprezent FM 107.1 community youth radio.

Dennis Hone, chief executive of Legacy Corporation, said: “It was really inspiring to meet some of the young people who have benefited from this superb radio project and to hear about some of the exciting work they’ve been doing.

“Giving young people new opportunities has always been a legacy aspiration of the Games and that’s exactly what this project delivers. Community projects like this will continue to build brighter futures for young people over the years to come.”

Estate exhibition shows photographic talent in Joseph Court

THE photography talents of young residents from Joseph Court, N16, were showcased at an exhibition on the estate.

The event on 15 June celebrated a recent photography workshop and competition, where young people captured their views of the area.

Two boys from the estate, Abderrahim, seven, and Joshua, 12, were announced the winners and were each presented with digital cameras by the Chair of the Tenants and Residents Association (TRA), Chris Gillooly.

As a result of positive comments and suggestions received from the project, the TRA plans to develop more activities for young people in the area.

Chris Gillooly said: “This successful event shows the advantage of engaging with all groups within estates such as our own. Well done to all the children involved.”

Chair of Hackney Homes Board Rupert Tyson added: “It’s great to see young people so passionate and making a difference by getting involved in improving their community.”

For more information on opportunities for young people in the local area, contact youth engagement officer Sonia Bradley on: 020 8356 7845.

Duncan Bannatyne, Jennie Frost and Robert Powell hold up X-rays of a pair of lungs as part of the national Be Clear on Cancer awareness campaign

Stay in the clear

ONLY 15 per cent of lung cancer cases are diagnosed at the earliest stage, when the treatment is most likely to be successful, according to Public Health England (PHE).

A survey from PHE reveals most Londoners are unaware of the symptoms of lung cancer, which include having a persistent cough.

The data also shows that 22 per cent of people in London think that all age groups are equally at risk of lung cancer, despite the fact that lung cancer is most common in people aged over 50. Some 41 per cent of people are also unaware that if a cough lasts more than three weeks it could be a symptom of lung cancer.

“ Go to your GP if you have a persistent cough for three weeks or more ”

Lung cancer is England's biggest cancer killer, causing 28,000 deaths annually in England and around 2,800 in London.

The data is part of Be Clear on Cancer, a drive to raise cancer awareness through TV, print and radio adverts, fronted by famous faces and GPs.

Sean Duffy, national clinical director for Cancer at NHS England, said: "Awareness campaigns like this are especially important in getting people with symptoms into doctors' surgeries. Go to your GP if you have a persistent cough for three weeks or more."

"During the regional pilot, trusts saw a 14 per cent increase in lung cancer cases diagnosed compared with last year.

"However, more needs to be done for our survival rates to be as good as the best in Europe. If they were, it is estimated that around 1,300 deaths could be avoided each year."

News in brief

Long-distance painting is added to Homerton collection

A NEW work of art has arrived at Homerton hospital following a 4,000 mile journey. Art curator Shaun Caton spoke to the artist about her donating the painting, not realising she was based halfway around the world on the Pacific coast in Vancouver, Canada. Shaun said: "The artist Patricia Kushner said she had read about our art collection at the hospital and wished to donate a painting to us. We have many donations from artists and I was delighted to accept her offer. When the painting arrived it was well wrapped up with labels showing it had come from Canada. It was in perfect shape after such a long journey. "This is without doubt the longest distance any of our paintings has ever had to come."

SHEL summer sports camp

CHILDREN aged seven to 13 can burn off some energy and meet new friends while taking part in a whole range of sports and activities at a special summer camp. # Number of pregnant women who smoke falls within Hackney

THE number of women in Hackney who classed themselves as smokers when they had their babies has fallen to the lowest rate in the borough since recording began in 2005.

Figures from the Health and Social Care Information Centre show 4.8 per cent of women were still smokers when they gave birth in 2012/13, compared to 6.3 per cent in 2011/12. The London average is 5.7 per cent.

Cllr Jonathan McShane, Cabinet Member for Health, Social Care and Culture, said: "The Council and other health providers in Hackney offer a range of services to help pregnant women to stop smoking and I would urge them to take up this support."

The Council funds a dedicated Stop Smoking support midwife at Homerton hospital to support pregnant women to quit.

Specialist midwife Carolyn Bovelle said: "We are pleased to see that our work is having an impact on the health of mothers and babies in Hackney.

"I work closely with our Stop Smoking team to provide women and their partners with support and advice about how to stop smoking during pregnancy and, we hope, after the baby is born."

It is estimated that about one third of all perinatal deaths (miscarriage, stillbirth after 24 weeks and death in the first four weeks of a baby's life) in the UK are caused by the mother smoking, according to the British Medical Association's Board of Science and Education. Pregnant women can contact Carolyn on: 020 8510 7732; or email: carolyn.bovelle@homerton.nhs.uk

New school of thought

THE second son of philanthropist Andrew Reed (featured in issue 306) retained a strong and influential relationship with the Hackney area.

Charles Reed was born in 1819 and spent his early childhood in Cheshunt, but his father's work at the London Orphan Asylum demanded that his family be closer to the institution and so they moved to live in Well Street.

Every Saturday Charles and his brothers were taken by their father to Clapton where they helped him lay out the grounds of the Asylum and made friends with the pupils there. Charles himself was schooled at Madras House Academy at 208 Mare Street, which followed an innovative schooling system whereby older pupils acted as monitors and helped supervise the younger students. The Mare Street establishment was said to be the most distinguished school of its type.

Aged 17, Reed was apprenticed to a Leeds woollen manufacturer to learn business, returning to London in 1842 when he co-founded the printing and type foundry firm of Tyler and Reed. Some of the typeface designs promoted by Reed are still in use today – such as Clarendon – which can be found amongst the font choices of computers. At first Reed lived at his father's smart new house in Cambridge Heath, but in 1844 he married Margaret Baines, youngest daughter of Leeds MP Edward Baines, and moved to New Broad Street.

However the ill health of their first child prompted the couple to move out of the City back to suburban Hackney where they found a house in St Thomas's Square, staying there for the next 20 years before moving to a house in Urswick Road, Homerton, that he named 'Earlsmead' after his father's small Surrey estate. Seven years later the family moved to a larger home in Tottenham, which was once again named 'Earlsmead'.

That same year Reed joined the Sunday School Union and became an inspector for the organisation. He was a keen supporter of the foundation of Homerton College for teacher training, as well as becoming chairman of the Bunhill Fields Preservation Committee in 1865, working to save the burial ground as an important open space when it was threatened by redevelopment.

Reed's commitment to the importance of London's historical landscape saw him elected as director of the Abney Park Cemetery Company, which he served between 1866 and 1881. He was influential in encouraging the Company to expand its business and establish new cemeteries in order to cope with the shortage of space for new burials at Abney Park.

Charles Reed was elected to Parliament as one of the first two MPs for Hackney on 17 November 1868, representing the Liberal party. His maiden speech advocated the exemption of Sunday and Ragged Schools from being made to pay poor rates, a measure which later became law.

He was re-elected in February 1874, the same year he was knighted by Queen Victoria, but a petition was held against an irregularity made by the returning officer, as a result of which Reed was unseated. He declined to be nominated again and suggested that Henry Fawcett should stand for the Liberals instead. Fawcett became the first blind MP, and campaigned for women's suffrage until his death in 1884.

In November 1870, Reed was elected as the Hackney member for the newly created School Board for London, becoming vice-chairman the following month and also chairman of the works committee. The Board worked to provide a modern education in high-quality premises for children between the ages of five and 13, with one of its earliest schools being that in Stoke Newington High Street, built in 1877 (now private accommodation). Reed became chairman of the Board in 1873 and held the position for the rest of his life.

Worn out by all-night sittings in the House of Commons, and also continuing disagreements amongst members of the School Board, he died at home on 25 March 1881 and was buried in Abney Park alongside his father. The graveside service was witnessed by a crowd of several thousand mourners.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see. Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

Shoreditch Trust

IN this edition, Shoreditch Trust presents a recipe from its healthy eating programme which aims to help residents produce healthy, tasty and seasonal food throughout the year. Claudia Manchanda, healthy eating manager, said: "Empanadas are a popular pastry in South America and are generally fried. To make our dessert version healthier, we reduced sugar content, used wholemeal flour and baked them rather than fried them. The tart pineapple with a twist of lime makes for a truly unusual but delicious treat, and they're great fun to make with children."

Pineapple and apricot empanadas

Makes 24 empanadas

Preparation time

60 mins

Cooking time

20 mins

Ingredients

Quick homemade 'jam'

- 6 dried apricots, chopped roughly
- ½ teaspoon of ground cinnamon
- Juice and zest of 1 large orange
- 2 teaspoons of sugar (optional)

Empanadas

- 1 cup wholemeal pastry flour
- ½ cup cornmeal
- ¼ cup brown sugar
- 1 ½ teaspoons baking powder
- 2 tablespoons cream cheese
- 2 tablespoons oil or butter
- 4 tablespoons milk
- 1 ½ cups chopped fresh pineapple
- 2 tablespoons breadcrumbs
- ¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Icing sugar or lime zest (optional)

Method

- Make the jam by simmering the apricots with the orange juice and zest and cinnamon for 15 minutes. If using sugar, stir it in until it has dissolved completely. Once cooled, blend using a stick blender.
- For the empanadas, mix the flour, cornmeal, sugar and baking powder together in a large bowl.
- Add the cream cheese and oil or butter and blend with your fingers until the mixture turns crumbly.
- Sprinkle the mixture with milk one tablespoon at a time and stir with a fork until it comes together, although it will still be a bit crumbly. Knead a few times in the bowl, then turn onto a floured surface and knead again until it comes together. Divide in half and shape into two discs. Wrap in plastic and refrigerate until chilled.
- Combine the pineapple and the homemade jam in a small saucepan and simmer, mashing the pineapple into smaller chunks with a potato masher or fork. Stir for 12 to 15 minutes until syrupy. Remove from the heat and stir in the breadcrumbs and cinnamon.
- Preheat the oven to 180C (Gas Mark 3).
- On a well-floured surface, roll out one disc of dough at a time into a circle 3mm thick. Using an 8cm round cookie cutter, cut smaller discs out of the dough, re-rolling the scraps as necessary to make 24 discs.
- Place one teaspoon of the filling in the centre of each disc. Fold in half, press the edges together and crimp with a fork. Place on a greased baking sheet.
- Bake the empanadas for 12 to 15 minutes or until golden, then transfer to a wire rack to cool off slightly. Serve warm or at room temperature, dusted with icing sugar or with a sprinkle of lime zest if desired.

Talk about transport and get your voice heard on buses

THE London Assembly's Transport Committee is seeking the views of users of London buses as part of an investigation into the changes of demand for bus travel in the capital.

Each weekday, 7,500 buses carry an estimated 6million passengers on routes across the capital, making buses Transport for London's (TfL) most popular service. This demand is expected to rise.

Through this investigation, the London Assembly aims to 'provide a formal, public way for people to express their views and influence TfL's approach to planning bus services, and persuade the Mayor and TfL to take different actions on future bus service provisions'.

By identifying the current and potential use of London bus networks and real-life accounts of these services, the transport committee will present a range of recommendations for the improvement of this transport service.

For further details and to have your say, visit: www.london.gov.uk/get-involved. Submissions will be accepted until the end of August.

Hackney Council has published its Development Management Local Plan and Site Allocations Local Plan – Publication Versions as part of its Local Development Framework (LDF) for consultation. The Development Management Local Plan (DMLP) – Publication Version contains planning policies which will be used mainly to guide and determine planning applications within the Borough (along with other LDF documents). This document will also be used to guide and determine planning applications on those sites, in addition to the DMLP and other LDF documents. More information about the purpose of each document, and all of the proposed policies, are contained within the documents themselves.

The Council is inviting comments on these two Local Plans and their accompanying documents before Submission Versions are prepared and submitted to the Secretary of State. The period for representations to be made will run from Monday 8th of July 2013 to Sunday 15th of September 2013, a duration of 10 weeks overall.
